LIST OF IMPORTS, EXPORTS OF RUMANIAN
FOREIGN TRADE ENTERPRISES

[The following information on Rumanian foreign trade and foreign trade enterprises was taken from a bulletin of the Rumanian Ministry of Foreign Trade distributed at the Leipzig Fair.]

Rumanian foreign trade was made a state monopoly to raise the standard of living within the RPR (Rumanian People's Republic) and to defend the country's independence. Trade with other countries is closely connected with increased domestic production. Trade relations with the USSR and the People's Democracies are based on mutual interest and equality. This trade is essential for the fulfillment and overfulfillment of the state economic plan. The Rumanian Ministry of Foreign Trade and the specialized export and import enterprises develop barter exchange of goods with the USSR and the People's Democracies for mutual advantage.

As a result of increased production and labor productivity, increasingly more goods are available for export to foreign countries. This includes industrial goods, grain, petroleum products, firewood, and various new products. The petroleum industry, for example, is in a position to deliver industrial petroleum derivatives and pharmaceuticals. The chemical industry can export innumerable new chemical and pharmaceutical products. Ready-made goods for export include leather, textiles, hides, and metal products. The wood industry can export furniture, plywood, barrels, wood for musical instruments, prefabricated houses, sports goods, and other items. Among food products available are vegetables, fruit, meat, wine, biscuits, fruit juices, stewed fruits, and other items. Industrial displays at the Leipzig Fair for export include radios, railroad cars, locomotives, and other items.
